and is mistaken for rheumatism.
The stomach is affected with loss of appetite and sickness, bowels in general costive, sometimes alternating with lax. The head is troubled with pain, and dull, heavy sensation, considerable loss of memory, accompanied with painful sensation of having left undone something which ought to have been done. Often complaining of weakness, debility and low spirits.— Sometimes many of the above symptoms attend the disease, and at other times very few of them;

The Northern Pacific road will reach Red River before the close of this year, and from this time on it will hardly be able to outrun settlement. After its first hundred miles of forest and swan p it passes through a region wholly beautiful and fertile, and a climate—constantly improving in temperature.—The St. Paul d Pacific road will also reach Breckinsige in September, and may be extendd within two or three years to Pembina and Fort Garry. For some hundreds of miles, both to the westward and northward, there is no greater difficulty of construction than in the Platte and Humholdt Valleys.
